FINALLY WE'RE HERE

by James Johnson

It was very hot because it was still August! It was still summer vacation and yet, hundreds of students and their parents filled Tiffney Gym for pre-school orientation. This was the Freshman class, the class of 1986, and on this hot summer evening, these students were going to begin to learn about their new home for the next four years. Principals, counselors, and staff members discussed rules and regulations as well as challenged the new group to strive for excellence as they traveled the academic road. Mike Dellapina, Student Council president, explained academics, sports, and activities from the student's point of view and then he was joined by other members of Student Council as they helped the varsity cheerleaders teach some of the SHS "traditions." As upper classmen, this group led the new Freshmen in the "Fight Song" and a few cheers for the upcoming football game. Soon it was time to face the realities of being a Wildcat as fall class schedules were passed out and tours were given of the building. Most new students and their parents went home a little confused with the vastness of the upcoming year, but very excited about being a WILDCAT.

1. Upperclassmen provide their help to the upcoming students. 2. Mike Dellapino. 3. Mr. Charles Harris. 4. Joni Wissinger. 5. Dr. Brion Knutson. 6. Missy Frost looks over her new schedule with her mom. 7. Ninth grade students await their schedules. 8. Adult Boosters Mr. Patton, Mr. Barnett, and Mr. Wipert set up for the selling of cups, and pep cushions. 9. Mrs. Warren answers questions from the ninth graders. 10. Freshmen listen with open ears at Orientation.

SPIRIT ON WHEELS

by
David Whited

The spirit seemed to sweep the area as the cheers from the crowd rumbled like thunder. Along with the "put put" of Model T's and the roar of International Harvester trucks were heard the cheers of the crowd for the royal court. This year the court was full with the pomp and circumstance that Queens as well as Kings deserve. Dr. Knutson presented the Queen, Debbie McConnell, and King, Tony Cooper, before a spirit-filled crowd of students at the Homecoming pep rally. Other members of the court were David Buffenbarger, Joyce Batey, Timothy Vance, Joni Wissinger, Mike Dellapina, Kim Gaines, Joe Banks, and Terri Means. The Queen and King were escorted to Evans Stadium by the Shawnee Antique Motor Club who volunteered their cars for the parade. The cars ranged from a Model T Ford to a Camero race car. An International truck was also in the parade. It carried the signs of the Junior and Senior Boosters. The skating cheerleaders rolled their way to the stadium leading the hoards of cheering fans. Parri Payne, a member of the Varsity cheerleaders, said that the people along the parade route were very enthusiastic in support of the Queens and Kings. Since the game immediately followed the parade, three of the kings had to wear their football uniforms during the parade.

1. Traci Mitchell rides on the "Spanish Club Bug." 2. Brian Callahon leads the Band to Evans Stadium. 3. Tony Cooper and Debbie McConnell, Homecoming King and Queen, wait for the parade to begin. 4. Mike Dellapina is announced as one of the Kings of the Court. 5. Sherry Hoggy, Choir Princess. 6. Kim Gaines, Homecoming Court. 7. Angie Meeks, Choir Princess. 8. Tim Vance and Joni Wissinger, Homecoming Court. 9. Joe Banks and Terri Means, Homecoming Court, begin the parade. 10. Signs of the Junior and Senior Boosters.

A NEW TRADITION

by
Lesley Garrett

It's Homecoming weekend and one question is heard throughout the halls of South . . . "Does a man with a crown belong here?" For weeks this question had been tossed around and finally a decision was made . . . a crown was for a queen, but this year there would be kings elected as well as queens. This was the beginning of a new tradition. The Homecoming game and dance started the festivities. Originally a court of five beautiful girls stood in front of the fans, but this year the crowd would look upon a court made up of five kings as well as five queens. The King, Tony Cooper, said that it was a different feeling, but he thought that it was nice to have men included in the Homecoming Court made up of David Buffenbarger, Timothy Vance, Michael Dellapina, Joseph Banks, and the King, Tony Cooper. The Queen, Debra McConnell, was joined by her court which consisted of Joyce Batey, Kim Gaines, Terri Meons, and Joni Wissinger. At the pre-game activities, the King and Queen received their crowns and rounds and rounds of applause as they began their reign at the Homecoming game. On Saturday night the festivities were continued with a dance in the school commons. This was the culmination of the Homecoming activities and it was a time for getting together and dancing with close friends.

AN UNWANTED KISS

by Anjanette King

Although he was tall and good looking, and the black cape thrown round his shoulders gave him a certain air of sophistication, the ladies in the audience knew that Halloween night was not the time to be kissed by Dracula. In spite of his hypnotic eyes and his easy smile, Dracula was not the man to spend an evening with in Transylvania. The story is old but the thrills and suspense are always new as the audience who came to see the South High School Drama Department's presentation of the time-proven thriller soon found out. From the real casket which was carried to and from the stage area each night by Lori Schmahl's father to Terry Phillips who dyed his hair black for his role as Dracula, everything in the play was authentic and this added to the enjoyment of the audience. As a special treat, the cast and crew, under the direction of Mr. Lloyd Lewis, gave a late night performance after a football game and this performance was the perfect way to celebrate a Halloween week-end. The theater was in deep shadows and the audience sat on the edge of their seats as the actors created an atmosphere filled with fun and excitement and conjured up thoughts of tombs and fangs and kisses from a man who could transform himself into a bat. The audience agreed that this was a perfect production for an October evening.

1. Anjanette King and Mike Black perform in Dracula 2.Terry Phillips and Debbie Hager embrace at the end of a suspenseful scene. 3. Jerome Taylor acts out his character at rehearsal. 4. Anjanette King tries to convince Debbie Hager to relax on the sofa. 5. Terry Phillips and Debbie Hager, dressed in character, ride in the Thespian car at the Homecoming Parade. 6. David Steen works on a scene which requires great concentration. 7. Terry Phillips lies in his coffin "dead" 8. Terry Phillips, Anjanette King, Mike Black, David Steen, Rod Lawhorn, Lori Schmahl, and Robert Ritter pose for a cast picture. 9 Dracula's casket. 10 Rod Lawhorn and Terry Phillips act out their characters in rehearsal for the performance.

A DAY IN GREECE

by
Angie Kearns

The auditorium of SHS became Mount Olympus for a day as the students from the Greek Mythology class celebrated with a Greek Festival. Under the direction of Mrs. Betty Deem, the members of the class dressed as their favorite god or goddess. During the morning each student gave a presentation explaining what his or her favorite god or goddess represented and everyone was represented from Hercules with his power and strength to Cupid with his bow and arrows. After the presentations were completed, the class was joined by alumni Tony Plataniotis and his sister DeeDee who taught students and faculty members the traditional Greek dances. Although some of the dancers found that the steps were a little complicated, everyone joined in the fun and danced until lunch time. Yes, on this day, the taste buds were not forgotten as the group culminated their activities with a dinner of Greek foods. Karen Sloan stated that "Greek food is delicious," and everyone enjoyed the celebration. It was soon time for the gods and goddesses to return to mortal form, but the students of the Greek Mythology class found that the experience of portraying the Greek gods had enriched their study of Greece and its customs.

HAPPINESS IS . . .

by Candie West

The SHS Drama Department presented "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" as its annual fall play, and the audience found that the presentation made a fun-filled evening for all who were in attendance. Although the cast was plagued by typical problems such as lost clothes and forgotten lines, the actors and actresses carried off these little mishaps without the audience being aware of any problems. Even when the entire cast forgot the words to the closing song "Happiness Is" on opening night, the audience hardly noticed as the group improvised and hummed along with great enthusiasm. An outstanding performance was given by Billy Copeland who played the part of Snoopy, as well as Tony Cooper who portrayed the lovable Charlie Brown, the vulnerable little boy whom everyone picks on. Of course, Mia Toles made a perfect Lucy as she played the "bully" in a daring and forceful way. The cast as a whole made the play come alive for the audience and "Charlie Brown" was one of the big successes of the 1982-83 school year.

BABY FACE

by Lesley Garrett

"Baby Face, you've got the cutest little . . ." rang through the classrooms of South on February 14 in the traditional celebration of this special day. The musical talents of the choir and the Senior Boosters were joined in harmony for "Baby Face," "You Are My Sunshine," and "Ain't She Sweet" as they delivered singing valentines from secret admirers, special loves, and faithful friends. The day started, as usual, with members of Student Council delivering red, pink, and white carnations to individuals as a special remembrance on this day for lovers. Then as the first period bell rang, the Singing Valentines began, complete with fancy routines by the singers and a large heart for the receivers to hold while they were being serenaded. It was a day filled with blushes, surprises, laughs, and old-time fun, and most students left school that afternoon with a hand full of carnations and a memory filled with special songs sung just for them. John Sprinkle, a member of Senior Boosters, said, "We had a lot of fun but by the end of the day, we were all tired."

STUDENTS ON THE GO

by
David Whited

"Extra, Extra . . . Read all about it," was the cry as the Herald Staff passed out the school's newspaper. Although the paper only came out once every three weeks, it was packed full of stories. They ranged from current events and sports to song dedications and Happy Ads. There was even a space reserved for the school's horror expert, Damon Lee who regularly wrote "Daman's Omen." There were a total of seven students on staff and with the aid of Mrs. Joan Butz, they produced a well organized, well-written paper each issue. Along with the Herald staff, there was another important group, the Math Club. The name tends to imply that the only thing done by this group was math, but that was not true. The Math Club organized the Computer Dating Game, and it helped its members with their problems. It also visited the Knights of Pythian Nursing Home during the Christmas season to help spread that holiday cheer. "The smiles of joy on the faces of the residents made it worth the trip," quoted Lesley Garrett, a three year member of the Math Club. Both of these groups of people really added to the effervescent aura of South High School.

1. The Herald Staff included Lance Clark, Marlene Skabla, Debbie Baaghier, Damon Lee, Down Daniels, Margaret Hargrow, and Mrs. Butz. 2. Greg Batkin and Mrs. Butz decide on a layout. 3. MAKING MEMORIES

by Candace West

Deadlines . . . Pictures . . . Layouts . . . all of this is what the 1983 yearbook staff is all about. This year's staff consisting of many hard working students has been plagued with many problems such as stolen equipment and incompleted layouts. Although the staff has had its share of problems, everyone seemed to enjoy the work that will eventually show through in the 1983 book. Angie Kearns stated that "working on the staff this year has been a great influence on my years here at South." Lesley Garrett said, "We have a great staff and I've enjoyed working with everyone." The attitude of this year's yearbook staff has been both positive and productive and the entire group has pulled together from selling ads to help finance the production costs to taking pictures of all the students here at South and at JVS. The worst problems that plagued the staff this year were stolen cameras, missing pictures, and as a culminating blow, a broken camera when Mr. Thompson, our school photographer, was preparing to take re-take pictures of the student body. These minor problems did not effect the staff in a negative way; they just kept on striving to make this the best yearbook ever.

CLUBS WITH FUN

by Anjanette King

Two groups that were very active at South this past year were the Thespians and the Latin Club. The Thespians is a select group of actors who earn their membership into this national organization by receiving points for participation in theatrical productions and there are many ways that a student can become eligible for initiation. Although acting is the most easily recognized form of participation, many students gain their pen by working behind the scenes on costumes, make-up, props, sets, or light. All of these students with their individual talents work together to create a strong Thespian chapter for the Drama Department. The Latin Club, on the other hand, is a new club that is drawn from those students who have a special interest in the study of Latin. Under the direction of the club sponsor, Mrs. Margaret Biber, the South Latin Club joined with the group from North to have a traditional Roman feast in the spring. Dressed in togas, the students sampled authentic Roman dishes and participated in past times that were favorites of the ancient Romans. This was just the beginning for this new group as the returning members are looking forward to the possibility of a trip to Rome in the Spring of 1984.

THE SCHOOL'S HEART

by Jayson Gee

The library is one of the most important parts of the school building and our library is the real heart of South's activities. Mrs. Marty Hahn and Miss Lois Poling, with the help of Mrs. Majorie Gram, work with over forty well-trained aides who serve the student body and library needs. This dedicated group plans many activities throughout the year for the enjoyment of the South family and one of the highlights of the Christmas season is the annual breakfast for the faculty. During National Library Week the library aides set up special displays and this year they donated an overhead projector, a hand-crafted lectern, and a reproduction of the Adena Pipe used in 100 B.C. by the Adena Indians to the school from funds the group had raised by selling candy. They also sponsored a car for the Homecoming Parade and had a Yearbook display exhibiting SHS yearbooks from 1909 as well as a Book Give-Away for the student body. 1983 has been a very successful year and Mrs. Hahn credits the smooth running of the library to the leadership of the Library Club officers. President John Sprinkle headed the group with the assistance of Vice President Katrina Helms who Mrs. Hahn states is a solid and dependable worker. Mrs. Hahn and her helpers hope that the library will continue to run smoothly and to be helpful to the students and faculty of South.

SPECIAL ORGANI-ZATIONS

by Angie Keards

Clubs! Clubs! Clubs! South High School has a good variety of organizations to meet the needs of its student body, whether a student has a special interest in an academic area or he or she wants to volunteer services to the school, there is a group to meet the needs as well as to offer fun and the opportunity to learn new things. FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) gave its members a chance to take a closer look at the business world as they visited several establishments including Kissell Company to observe first hand new and different business procedures. "FBLA helps you to learn more about the business world," said Angie Kearns, a senior member of the organization. The Future Homemakers of America (FHA) was another group which offered its members an opportunity to look at the many facets of Home Economics and related career fields. During the school year may FHA members took part and received honors at rallies held at neighboring schools. At the Regional Rally at Belmont High School, Cindy Parks received a first place for her speech. Another club which deals with an academic subject is the Spanish Club whose members continue to study the different cultures of the Spanish speaking countries. This group had a special treat at the end of the year when they visited a local restaurant for a Spanish meal. If a student is interested in service to his school and community, the newly formed Key Club, sponsored by Kiwanis Club, was the perfect group for involvement. This group's special project was individual fire escape maps which were mounted in each class room. If the outdoor life holds an interest for a student, the Ski Club is probably just the thing. This group of skiers, regardless of their ability, took many trips to Bellefontaine throughout the winter to practice their skills and enjoy a night in the snow. Regardless of a student's interest, there seemed to be a club that met their needs this year at South.

1. Members of the Ski Club take a moment to relax before a skiing trip. 2. Members of the newly formed Key Club pose for a formal picture. 3. Angie Kearns, FBLA member. 4. MIXED-UP RELATIVES

by Stephanie Freeman

For the first time the South High Drama Department presented a production in their own version of theater in the round. Chairs were placed on three sides of the stage in an effort to create an intimate atmosphere between the audience and the cast of Charlie's Aunt and a special feeling of participation developed between both spectator and actor. As the play began, the audience found themselves in an English boarding school with two young college students who were preparing for a visit by Charlie's Aunt. As the plot developed and Charlie found that his aunt would not arrive in time to chaperone, the audience was right "in the thick" of the action as Charlie's best friend was tricked into disguising himself as the aunt and pretending to be a chaperone for the young ladies. As life became more complicated for the disguised aunt, the audience both laughed and sympathized with the cast as Charlie's father and friend competed for the love of the "aunt," the real aunt arrived, and the "aunt's" girl friend entered the story. This was a delightful comedy that was made more exciting by the blending of audience and actors. The cast of Charlie's Aunt included Von Thomas, Anjanette King, Brock Woods, Robin Anglemyer, Terry Phillips, Cheri Lawson, Steven Saba, Donald Ferryman, Annette Locke, and Tom Wipert.

1. Steven Saba awaits the arrival of the guests in an early scene. 2. Annette Locke. 3. Tom Wipert. 4. Brock Woods. 5. Anjonette King. 6. Terry Phillips and Robin Anglemyer discuss their plans for the weekend. 7. Donald Ferryman looks on in disbelief as Charlie explains his plan. 8. Terry Phillips as Charlie plans the scheme that creates the plot. 9. Cheri Lawson and Annette Locke discuss the fact that they are not recognized by the others in the cast. 10. Von Thomas and Brock Woods "bump" into each other as each plots his moves on Charlie's Aunt.

NUMBER ONE HE-MAN

by
David Whited

How do you know if you are macho or not? Well, if you don't know, then read on. If you dress right, look sharp, and are able to display a variety of talents, then you might hava a chance. The contestants for this year's Macho Man Contest were David Buffenbarger, Chris Henry, Gary Ishman, Jerome Taylor, William Todd, and the Mysterious Zorro. These finalists were chosen from candidates nominated by the homerooms and from the total amount of money collected from penny votes in the cafeteria. The contest consisted of eight different events: fast talking the ladies, eating jello blindfolded, creating an original costume, and answering special questions as well as appearonce and tolent. With all of the contests combined, the judges were able to make their decision. Jerome Taylor was the victor! Although he was the winner, all of the contestants displayed a variety of talents. David Buffenbarger showed his talents of "Benchwarming;" Chris Henry pressed 265 pounds with ease; Gary Ishman rapped, Jerome Taylor displayed his acting talents; and William Todd danced to music while displaying the martial art of numb-chucks. The Masked Man, Zorro, displayed his ventriloquism with Charlie Brenner. Terry Phillips, one of the announcers felt that the program went very well. The Senior Boosters played the greatest role in the contest, however, as they were the originotors, the funders, the organizers, and most of all, the workers during the contest. It was a well designed contest aided by Mrs. Deem.

SOUNDS IN HARMONY

by
Lori Clark

The orchestra had a busy and successful year under the direction of Dr. Jan Ebert. This was the first year that Dr. Ebert had worked exclusively with the Orchestra although she was no stranger to its members as she had been affiliated with South's Marching Band for several years. The orchestra was made up not only of strings but also of percussion, woodwinds, and a small section of brass that worked together to create a harmonious sound. Dr. Ebert set high goals for her group, and they met those expectations throughout the year. Along with their own concerts, the orchestra accompanied the choir and were also featured at the Christmas Concert. They also played the score for the successful spring musical, South Pacific, and on several occasions, they gave early morning recitals in the main lobby for the student body. They culminated their year with the traditional march on Graduation Night, and Dr. Ebert said that she has a lot of confidence in the future as the members of the Orchestra were quick to catch on to music and very dedicated in their endeavors.

1. The Orchestra plays at graduation. 2. Denise White, Norma Skabla, Yvonne Lawrence, and Marlina Perkins play at South Pacific. 3. David Newport, Lisa Yarbrough, and Todd Baldridge practice for the Spring Musical. 4. Kim Pezoldt plays the bass drum. 5. Jim Parks plays in the Brass Quartet. 6. Todd Baldridge, Leah Day, and Lisa Yarbrough are three award winners. 7. Leah Wilkerson. 8. Jane Miller. 9. Kim Pezoldt. 10. Beth Rollins.

THE BEAT GOES ON

by Lisa Vincent

Band was more than just 264 feet marching down the football field. As soon as the marching season was completed, the Marching Band broke into three separate groups, each with a different function, but with many students participating in more than one. The first of these groups was the Concert Band which went on tour to several middle schools as well as gave concerts at South. Probably, the most visual of the three groups was the Pep Band which helped promote school spirit by playing at pep rallies and basketball games. Both of these groups worked under the leadership of Mr. Steve Vrooman. The third group, under the direction of Mr. Mark Hoagland, was the Jazz Band which played "swing music" in concert as well as in public places such as nursing homes and other schools. The band with its many fund raising projects and trips was supported by a very strong Band Parent's Organization, and these devoted parents chaperoned the group's many trips as well as sponsored the Band Banquet at the end of the year. This banquet was very special as this was the time when band members were recognized and awarded for their participation in band activities. This group of students was very dedicated and with their mony musical talents, they added greatly to the enjoyment of the school year.

OUR VOICES SING OUT

by
Melanie Blackwell

This was a big year for the Symphanic Choir as they appeared on national television. Just before Newsweek's anniversory issue featuring Springfield as the American Dream City hit the news stands, NBC came to South to interview Springfielders for the Todoy Show and the choir was asked to sing for the special program. All faces lit up as the mikes were set and the cameras began to roll for the choir's national debut. The next big event for this musical group was the annual Christmas concert which featured four soloists, Melanie Blackwell, Tony Cooper, Jerome Taylor, and Lisa Vincent. At the Spring Concert this year the program featured a special number which was a selection using sign language. This unusual presentation was choreographed by members of the choir and it was received with great appreciation by the audience. One of the final performances of the Jazz Choir which is a select group chosen from the Symphonic Choir was a special treat for the choir group. They were asked to sing at a School Board Banquet honoring six teachers chosen as the Exemplory Teachers of the year and one of the honored teachers was Mrs. Alice Marshall, the choir director. This was a special moment for all the South people involved and a fitting way to end the year.

STUDENT LEADERS

by Craig Elliott

Under the direction of Assistant Principal Richard Mills and Mr. James Stewart, this year's Student Council has been a group on the go with many new ideas to work for the betterment of South. Beginning with Freshman Orientation, Student Council took its rightful place as school leaders by aiding the Freshmen and their parents to tour the building after Mike Dellapina, SC President, spoke to the group about the opportunities of student involvement. At Homecoming this group organized the parade and the Homecoming Dance as well as sponsored a Spirit Week which features a Western Day, a New Wave Day, and of course, a Blue and Gold Day. In the early spring, Student Council sponsored its second annual Style Show to raise funds for school projects, and the members not only planned the function, but many of the members participated as models. Student Council also took over the planning and decorating for Prom. Along with these many activities, the Student Council members met regularly and reviewed and updated the organization's constitution. The 1982-83 Student Council has had a year of success brought about by the hard work and determination of its members.

What has eight legs; a hassled expression; pizzas, candy, and pennant list in its hand; and a continuous cry for spirit? . . . The four officers for each of the individual classes at SHS. These sixteen individuals along with class advisors were chosen in the fall and for the first time at South freshman, sophomores, juniors, and seniors began to work toward class spirit early in the year. Few people realize the experience that is needed and the major decisions that must be made when a student takes on the responsibilities of a class officer. The four officers are unique in that they must give dedication, determination, leadership, and devotion to a class of peers who really do not want to be led, and life is not always easy. The first responsibility of these class officers is getting the class to think as a group and plan as a unit, and there are as many different ideas as there are people involved. Out of this chaos they must come up with ideas that are acceptable to the majority and at least reasonable to the few. In the midst of this job, the officers must also instill class spirit and booster school spirit as friendly rivalry develops among the classes and culminates with Spirit Day which was won this year by the Junior Class. It is an exciting job for those willing to do the work and give their time to their school.

1. The Junior Class officers included: Darryl Bego, President; David Steen, Vice President; Stephen Saba, Treasurer; and Kevin Reynolds, Secretary. 2. Jeff Jones held the number one office as President of the Senior Class. 3. Treasurer Robin Wellington and Vice-President Sam Clayborne take a moment to pose for Yearbook. 4. The Sophomore Class officers included Ann Womack, Treasurer; Michele French, Secretary; Mendy Downs, Vice President; and Traci Mitchell, President. 5. The Freshman Class officers included Rene Bridgett, Secretary; Dana Berry, Vice President, and Donald Curry, President. 6. Amy Robey completed the year as the Secretary of the Senior Class. 7. Mr. Caldwell led the sophomores as they began to plan for their senior year. 8. Mrs. Corner was the other half of the "Dynamic Duo which led the seniors. 9. Miss Stock was the Junior advisor for 1982-83. 10. Mrs. Elam was one of the two advisors who worked with the Senior class.

A DAY TO REMEMBER

by
Angie Kearns

Ribbons, cards, and pins were just some of the awards that were distributed during the National Honor Society ceremony. NHS has been a proud tradition at South High School for a numerous amount of years, and proud parents and visitors continue to come each year to watch their children and their friends being honored in this special ceremony. Graduating seniors of the National Honor Society will be designated at the Graduation exercise by the wearing of solid gold tassels instead of the traditional gold and blue worn by the remaining members of the senior class. "I will always cherish my membership in the National Honor Society and the honors that the members receive," stated Melanie Blackwell, treasurer of the organization. A reception was given after the assembly for the parents and the students who were being honored. This will be one day of many that will never be forgotten.

1. Senior members of National Honor Society and Dr. Knutson make their entrance as the ceremony begins. 2. Terri Means gives a speech to all the members of NHS. 3. Melanie Blackwell. 4. Mr. Wilson. 5. David Newport. 6. Jeff Jones. 7. Becky Skiles tops Melisso Mebane for National Honor Society. 8. Sophomore Honor students are recognized at the NHS ceremony. They include Traci Mitchell, Lisa Stone, Tom Brewer, Mario Whitmon, Michele French, Kelvin White, Carmen Koeser, Mendy Downs, Cynthia Campbell, John Choffin, Stacy Robinson, Sylvia Hadden, Ron Dillard, Marlino Perkins, Michelle Beers, Wes Souders, Angelo Womack, and Mike Flora. Absent was Carlotta Hagans. 9. Dr. Knutson congratulates David Newport for being inducted into National Honor Society. 10. Dr. Knutson administers the pledge of membership.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION

by
Tammy Smith

Initiation into National Honor Society is one of the highest honors a student may receive while in high school. This organization is based on overall academic achievement as well as on character and leadership, and it is made up of a very select group of juniors and seniors. The ceremony this year was held in the South High School auditorium, and it was marked by solemnity and dignity as the officers with the aid of Dr. Knutson presented the initiation ceremony to the new members. With parents and friends in attendance, the new initiates waited patiently for their names to be called so that they could become a part of this national organization which honors academic achievement. After the ceremony was completed, a reception was held in the library to honor the new members and their parents, and Miss Miller and Mr. Wilson, co-advisors for National Honor Society were pleased with the outcome of the day. Tammy Smith, a senior inductee, stated, "Making National Honor Society is a special reward to me for all my years of striving to achieve good grades."

BEHIND THE SCENES

by Lesley Garrett

"Act II begins in three minutes . . . Lift the curtain when she says . . . Change the scenery for the next scene . . . Raise the house lights . . ." All of these jobs were done by the stage crews during one of South High School biggest productions South Pacific. These groups of unsung heroes are responsible for seeing that the actors are on stage on time; that the props are set up, and that the curtains are pulled at just the right moment. The sound, lights, and parts of the scenery are controlled from the sound booth above the audience by members of the stage crew who spend many hours practicing their skills and perfecting split-second timing. Throughout the performance, the crew in the sound booth and the crew back stage are constantly in contact with each other so that the two groups work in unison to create the special moods that are so vital to the play and to the enjoyment of the audience. These are the unsung members of the drama department, those individuals who work behind the scenes to create the make believe world and who accept their thanks from the cast and the director instead of from the applause of the audience.

HAPPY TALK

by Lesley Garrett

"Happy, Happy Talk" was heard throughout the auditorium of South High School as the play South Pacific opened on a balmy April evening. The show ran for two consecutive week-ends with each performance being enjoyed by large audiences. From the opening strains of the overture played by the SHS Orchestra to the finale with the whole cast on stage, the auditorium was filled with joyful moments of harmonious music. Lisa Vincent as Nellie Forbush dazzled the audience with her energetic portrayal of a WAVE in the South Pacific, and she surprised the trumpet section of the orchestra by "washing that man right out of her hair" and shaking the water from her onstage shower into the brass. Opposite Lisa was Jerome Taylor who added his style and lovely voice to the part of Emile déBeque. However, the real scene stealer was Terry Phillips who performed the belly dance for his shipmates who agreed "There Is Nothing Like a Dame." Add to these leads, the talent of Mia Toles as Bloody Mary and an outstanding cast and crew, and it was no wonder that each performance ended with a standing ovation.

1. The cast takes a bow. 2. Mia Toles tries to sell her shrunken head and her grass skirt. 3. A NIGHT TO REMEMBER

by Candance West

This year's Prom was truly a success due to all the hard work put forth by members of the Prom Committee and the teachers who offered their help to the group. Becky Skiles was in charge of decorations and entertainment while David Myers handled the ticket sales. Everyone on the committee participoted in decorating and they were aided by a few non-committee members who joined in the fun. Decorating started Friday afternoon when school was out and was finished Saturday afternoon. Parents furnished the refreshments and everything was in place for a perfect evening. All the table decorations were ordered and made especially for South's Prom. Each table had a covering with a picture of the theme, "Moonlight and Roses." All the decorations had been given a great deal of attention so that everything would be perfect when the guests arrived. Becky Skiles stated that she wanted to make Prom an evening that would be remembered by everyone. This was Becky's senior year and everyone commended her for her hard work and dedication in making the prom a real success for everyone.

1. Robin Simpson ond David Rose enjoy a dance together. 2. Mrs. Elam, senior class sponsor, enjoys the festivities. 3. Katrina Helms arranges the flowers. 4. Lesley Garrett views the dance floor. 5. A DAY OF SPECIAL RECOGNITION

by Parri Payne

Awards Day was an event that the entire student body, along with parents and friends, was able to be a part of. This event does not dedicate itself just to the outstanding athletic heroes and school leaders, for it points out rewards to those students of outstanding academic ability. Although some of the scholars knew about their awards, others were surprised at the honors they received. One of the first awards was the perfect attendance presentation and Mr. Baker made a point of proclaiming the accomplishment of Sam Clayborne who had four-year's of perfect attendance. Talent awards were also given. Jerome Taylor received the Choir Award; Leah Day, Orchestra; and Jeffrey Fain, Band. The Dramatics Award went to Terry Phillips for his outstanding theatrical performance throughout the year. The Speech Award was presented to Cheri Lawson and the Library/Audio-Visual Awards went to a single member of each class: Freshman, Robin Roberts; Sophomore, Carmen Kaeser; Junior, Pamela Corns; and Senior, Greg Batkin. During the program, the teachers that gave out the awards expressed their thanks for the dedication, determination, and cooperation of the students. Some special remarks were made throughout the program about the students' participation that sparked laughter from the audience, while others showed the teachers' concern and appreciation for the students' hard work. Afterwards, the award winners, along with some of their parents, were invited to Walters Gym for refreshments.

This was an outstanding year for special programs at South High School and because of these presentations the student body became very aware of local and national events. Excitement ran high at South on the day that the International Harvester Company held a press conference in Springfield to announce that the company would continue its operations in Springfield and members of both the Herald and the Wildcat staff covered the news conference. Since this seemed to be the year for Springfield's national news coverage through the anniversary issue of Newsweek magazine, many students found themselves on the other side of the camera as they were interviewed by NBC's reporters for a special TV segment on Springfield. In coordination with a program for Gifted Students, Brigadier General James Abrahams landed in his helicopter on South's practice field and then spoke to a joint group from North and South on national defense. Probably the highlight of the year was the guest appearance of the Rev. Jesse Jackson who spoke to the student body on pride in education followed by a re-enforcement speech by Art Thomas several months later. Another special event at South was an informal performance and talk given by a singer of the Metropolitan Opera. The 1982-83 school year at South was filled with special programs that will long be remembered by the student body.

1. Rev. Jesse Jackson speaks to SHS students, faculty, and guests on the value of pride in education. 2. Opera singer performs for the members of the Symphonic Choir. 3. The Springfield Police Department's basketball team challenged the SHS faculty for the enjoyment of the student body. 4 International Harvester officials hold a press conference to announce that the IH plant will remain in Springfield. 5. Candy West speaks with NBC reporter Mike Leonard as she is interviewed for the Todoy Show. 6. Art Thomas speaks to the student body of South on the impartance af education. 7. LAST NIGHT TOGETHER

Melanie Blackwell

Class Night, which was held at Wittenberg's Shouvlin Center, proved to be a fun-filled evening of surprises for all the class officers with the help of class advisors, Mrs. Winnie Cotner and Mrs. Kay Elam, had everything letter perfect by the time the seniors began to arrive. The evening began with a buffet dinner followed by the South High Jazz Choir which entertained the group with several musical selections. Suddenly from the hall appeared two gypsies complete with secret spells and special prophecies about the future of many of the class members. Laughter spread through the room as Mrs. Donna Field and Mrs. Betty Deem looked into the year 1993 to explain what the seniors could expect. On a more serious note, Dr. Brian Knutson with the aid of Mr. Charlie Fox, past principal of South, announced the winners of special awards and scholarships. These awards were followed by the announcement of the class favorites and then the group got down to the real fun of the evening. Tables were cleared and the floor was made ready for a dance which was disc-jockeyed by the Senior Class' own Ralph McKenzie. All too soon, the music come to an end, the lights were turned up, and Class Night was only a memory which would never be forgotten.

1. The Jazz Choir entertained the Senior Class. 2. Mr. Charles Fox smiled at the class as he finished his speech. 3. Carlos Stone showed a sign of relief as he thought of graduating in just two days. 4. Tracy Stanforth celebrated the upcoming graduation. 5. Kim Gaines and Rachelle Rucker smiled for the camera. 6. Tom Wipert showed relief for being out of school 7. Joel Wilson and dancing partner, Sherry Ballentine, enjoyed the music. 8. The table awaited the arrival of the Senior Class at Class Night held at the Wittenburg Shouvlin Center. 9. A group of seniors expressed their happiness. 10. Mrs. Donna Field and Mrs. Betty Deem prepared to look into the future of the Senior Class.

CLASS FAVORITES

by
Melanie Blackwell

This year's Senior class went out with a bang as they put their minds together to come up with those deserving special recognitions. The awards ranged from Most Likely to Succeed to Class Wit. As the members of the class waited to hear the announcements the teachers tabulated the votes and sealed the announcements until the presentations began. Teresa Means and Joseph Banks were voted Best Liked of the Class, while Most Active Male and Female were Terry Phillips and Melissa Mebane. Rebecca Skiles and Jeffrey Jones were proud to be voted Most Likely to Succeed while Mike Dellapina and Rochelle Woods were more than happy to take the title of Class Wits. Rochelle Woods felt like a true champ as she took the award for Best Female Athlete along with Best Male Athlete, Timothy "Bucky" Vance. Most Talented Female, Melanie Blackwell, and Most Talented Male, Jerome Taylor, were surprised to know that they had adopted these titles, while Most Devoted Couple, Lesley Garrett and David Whited, were sure winners. Last but not least, David Buffenbarger gained the title of Most Handsome while Most Beautiful was given to Joani Wissinger. All who received these awards deserve a hand.

A MOMENT BEFORE

by
Melanie Blackwell

It was a warm afternoon and the seniors, dressed in jeans, shorts, and hair curlers, were everywhere. Laughter rang out of the chaos as students milled around waiting for someone to take control. Slowly the banner with the class motto taken from Rev. Jesse Jackson's speech was raised to the top of the stage at Memorial Hall and suddenly it was not just an ordinary school day. This was Graduation Day and in a few short hours Commencement would begin. Quickly the seniors found their seats, practiced marching and receiving their diplomas, and then rushed home to get ready for the real thing. By 7:45 everyone had returned to Memorial Hall and along with a change in dress, there was also a change in atmosphere. The laughter was a little more subdued as the tension grew, and the realization set in that graduation was almost here. Teachers pinned on collars and straightened mortar boards as parents snapped pictures and friends reminisced about memories of school. At last everyone was in line and names were checked and tissues were passed out for "drippy eyes." All too soon the music began and with straighten shoulders and heads held high, the Seniors of 1983 stepped forward for this was Graduation Day.

THANKS, MOM AND DAD

by
Tammy Smith

At the suggestion of School Board President Sam Lambert, the Senior Class of 1983 rose, turned to the audience, and said, "Thanks, Mom and Dad." These were the people who for twelve years had given encouragement and help, and this night was as much for them as for the graduates. It was an evening filled with emotion and pride, mixed with solemnity, joy, and sadness, and it was a special evening for everyone concerned. As the Top Five members of the Class of 1983 spoke to their peers about the promises of the future, each member held to his own personal memories and dreams of tomorrow. When at last, Dr. Brian Knutson invited the seniors to come on stage to receive their diplomas, these was a moment of hesitation before the thrill of the event actually became a reality. Proudly, the seniors marched across the stage of Memorial Hall and received the diplomas that they had worked so hard to acqure. Each tassel was changed from one side of the mortar board to the other, and in that moment, the 1983 Seniors became alumni.

NOW THE PARTY BEGINS

by
Tammy Smith

As the hats were tossed into the air, shrieks of joy and laughter were heard throughout Memorial Hall. Graduation was over! After thirteen years of public schooling, the Class of 1983 was given their reward along with a lot of hugs and pats on the back, and suddenly they were alumni. For some there were tears of joy and for others there were sighs of relief, but for all of the seniors, there was an excitement of ending one phase of their lives and beginning another. Some would merely rest for the summer and prepare to enter college in the fall; others would immediately begin jobs that are the beginning of a life-long profession. Still others would make plans for marriage or prepare to enter some branch of the Armed Forces. But tonight was graduation night and the future could begin tomorrow. Tonight was the end of an era and this was a time to party. So as the lights of Memorial Hall were finally dimmed, families and friends drifted homeward as the new graduates rushed off to Graduation parties and one last fling with fellow classmates.

ACROSS THE MILES

by: Parri Payne

The 1982-83 Cross Country team was basically made up of Freshmen. There were only four Seniors on the squad, two of whom were the captains, Bill Copeland and Sam Smith. The good personality contrast helped the team through their tough spots. On the days that the upper classmembers couldn't get anything going, the Freshmen were always willing to help out. DAldo Warfield ran for the varsity squad as a Freshmen and ended the year by placing twelfth in the District. He set a new record for himself in the Regionals where he and Sam Smith were the only members running for the South team. Sam went on to run the 3.1 mile run at the State meet which was held in Columbus, Ohio. Along with members of the team, students from school also went to Columbus to help boost Sam's spirit. Over one hundred people ran in the race and Sam, although he did not win, came in 51st place and was glad to have had the chance to be a part of the State meet. Sam set a new South record of 16:16 in the 3.1 mile and he came in second in the District. Another award that was given to Sam was the honor of being named to the All-WOL Team. The team's over-all record for the year was 31-21. They were in Fourth place in the Greenville Invitational, and the Buckcreek Invitational. They came in Third in the County Meet and Seventh in the WOL.

The name of the game is golf, but behind the name are many other things such as long hours of practice, exercise, and fresh air, and lots of satisfaction. Afterall, practice is essential in developing the individual's skill, and golf is the game of the individual. Exercise and fresh air come with practice and the matches. The golf team swung into action again this year with the anticipation of winning. As one of the smallest teams at South, this eight man team played individually, but they also played as a team. Under the leadership of Coach Jim Mayers, the golf team had one of its best years ever as it won several matches. Although there were four lettermen returning to offer leadership and help to the new underclassmen on the team, the golfers took great pride in what they did, and their attitudes were good. All year the players were always willing to try their best and their best they did as they finished eighth in the WOL. Most any member of the team will tell you that a golfer receives a lot of satisfaction in trying to master the game. He gets satisfaction when he sets a goal and realizes it, and when he knows that the team's performance is something to be proud of. Golf is a sport of dedication, and its participants faithfully follow it through under all conditions and in all kinds of weather.

THE WILDCAT VOLLEYBALLERS

by Jayson Gee

The 1982 Wildcat Girls' Volleyball team certainly had its ups and downs with its highest win streak reaching three. However, Mrs. Maness says that she is very pleased with the season because the "improvement of the young players was a key part in the 10-9 overall record." She also felt that camp really helped the girls, and that they can learn more in that one week than a whole season of volleyball. Camp seems to bring out the best in a player, and team members can learn things faster because of the constant drilling they get. Mrs. Maness' "Yo-Yoers' set goals at the beginning of the season which they accomplished. They wanted to develop a new offense which Coach Maness called "Power Volleyball," and it seemed to bring improvement to all the players. Dawn Oliver earned the title Most Valuable Player for her serves and sets; Cindy Babineaux for her sets, and Stephanie and Lynn Freeman for their dangerous spikes. Captain Cindy Berry displayed her leadership abilities and talents, and the Yo-Yo team was rounded out by the Hustlers, better known as the "Floor Burners," who included Dawn Howard, Mary Grimm, and Yvonne Vagnone. The Wildcat Yo-Yoers had key upset wins over cross town rivals North and Central as well as Dayton Carroll, but Mrs. Maness felt that the best game was the victory over Urbana in which the team demonstrated desire, hustle, and unity. As tournament time neared, the Wildcat Volleyballers were not expected to do well. However, their second season was just like the regular season with the UP starting with a win over fourth seeded Greenville, and the DOWN coming on a loss to unseeded Sidney.

It was a good football season but one game in particular stands out because of the intervention of Mother Nature. On the night of November 5th, 1982, the South High football team began getting ready to take on one of its top contenders in the Western Ohio League. The football team boarded the buses for the 25 mile trip to Huber Heights, Ohio to take on the Wayne High Warriors. The Wildcats came with the thought of beating the Warriors, knowing that they would have to battle an awesome defense and a quick offense, but not knowing that the biggest battle of all would come between the mighty Wildcats and the Haulk. The footballers came dressed for the weather but the dress could not hold out the bitterness of the cold. The game began and every player tried to keep warm by a small space heater that was kept on the side line. Many of the players wore gloves on their hands, baseball shirts under their jerseys, and long johns under their pants, but nothing seemed to stop the cold from invading first fingers and toes, and soon the whole body. No matter how cold the weather was to become! The Wildcat fans still showed up to cheer their team.

THE CRASH CREW

By: Craig Elliot

The 1982 Wildcat football team was a team to be reckoned with in the Western Ohio League (WOL). The Cats' 7-3 third place finish was a mighty step forward from the years' past. This year's heart and soul of the team were the seniors. Head Coach Mickey Hannon stated that, "Our seniors this season have been real team leaders. They showed a great maturity and a willingness to learn. They are the best bunch of football leaders I have ever had." The Cats were full of talented young athletes who ranked high among their league peers. Tim Doggett, Joe Banks, Ricky Ragland, Harry Daniels, and Jerry Rogan were some of the names that rang loud in the WOL, but the name that was heard throughout the state was senior tailback Bucky Vance. Bucky won numerous local awards including the Southwest District Offensive Player of the year. His biggest award, however, was being selected to the All-State team. South High is becoming a name to be feared in the Western Ohio League and the wildcat roar will soon be heard throughout the area.

This was a very spirited year for the Wildcats and our motto was "Stress the Positive." Not only did we stress the positive at South High, we also mastered the idea along with our high hopes of cheering our football team all the way to W.O.L. title. Well our team didn't quite win the W.O.L. but we kept our heads high and cheered our football team on anyway. Our Pep rallies were very positive as we had spirit chains, routines, spirit competitions, and "rap sessions" by members of the football team. Along with many other exciting events, we were even given the pleasure of seeing the ever-so-popular Video character Pac Man in a routine done by the cheerleaders. The Pac Man cheerleaders chomped us right our of our seats, and filled the gym with roars of approval for their team. The cheerleaders were an enthusiastic and exciting group, and unlike many cheerleading squads, they not only concentrated on the football team, but also they cheered on the golf and cross country teams by decorating their lockers, along with the football team's to show that the Wildcat student body supports all teams. Mrs. Clark, a former cheerleader and student of South High, took over the job of cheerleading advisor this year and she has made many changes that "polished" our Varsity squad. Cheerleaders say sometimes her rules seemed a little strict and unfair, but they knew it was only for the best interest of the squad and the Representation of South High. All in all, Mrs. Clark had been a very helpful understanding advisor, and she, along with the varsity girls made the SHS Varsity Cheerleaders a group that is tops in the W.O.L.

CRACK! CRACK! CRACK! CRACK!

By: Lori Clark

Crack! Crack! Crack! Have you guessed it yet? Well, just in case you haven't, it's the SHS Marching Band as it starts the Friday night show led by Brian Callahan, the drum major. Brian has held this position for two years and has established a fine record of twirling his baton. Marlita Fischer, the band's flame-throwing majorette, is known for filling the fans with amazement as she filled the sky with fire from her baton at the North-South game. While the band entertained each Friday night with its music, marching, and fine shows, it was not unusual to highlight such players as Lisa Yarbrough as she dazzled us with "Star" and took us "Somewhere Down the Road." Todd Baldridge and Jeff Fain, with their solos, led us into "Tomorrow" from the broadway hit "Annie." David Whited, the president of the band, stated, "The band had lots of spirit this year, and the freshmen were a welcomed addition to our group. Of course, one of the highlights of the year was band camp . . . five days in August filled, this year, with freezing weather in the early mornings and hot summer sun in the afternoon. It was a time filled with the constant beat of stereos, guitars, and even Van Halen and AC/DC tapes all playing in unison and a time spent living on munchies brought from home instead of eating camp food, but it was a good time for companionship and building a strong working band. Jeff Tussey states, "It was five days that I wouldn't give up for all the gold you could give me," and that is really saying something when you remember the shrill sounds of the "National Anthem," played Jimi Hendrix-style by guitarist Steve Truman through a giant amplifier and used as an alarm clock to start each day.

Hair spray, make-up, lost gloves, and briefs? Can you guess who these items belong to? Well, they belong to the South High Drill team and any time that you get that many girls in one area, there are bound to be problems with equipment. The members of the drill team take a lot of time getting ready for each show so that they will look their best for the Wildcat fans. Although they practice their routines every week so that they will be ready to dance and make South High School proud on Friday night, there are always moments of confusion just before game time. Hairspray, make-up, lost gloves, and briefs suddenly become major items of importance. For some members getting ready for the performance is nothing but chaos. It is not unusual to hear the following comments before any game: "I'm almost out of hairspray," cries Davina Simpson; and "Mom, I can't find my gloves," screams Lisa Vincent. Sherry Haggy, the drill team captain, complains that she always has a run in her stockings, and Chelley French once came to Evans Stadium ready to perform, but she soon realized that she had forgotten her briefs. However, in spite of these little mishaps, the girls feel that the long hours of practice time they put into drill team was really a reward in the end. Meeting new people and learning to demonstrate their ability is what the South High School Drill Team is all about.

Although wrestling is a team competition, it is also an individual sport which depends on the stamina and strength of each wrestler. Wrestling, unlike basketball or football, where there is a group that works together in a team effort, is a one-on-one sport with team mates giving moral support. When the referee blows the whistle, each wrestler must face his opponent with determination and what he does, he must do entirely by himself. This year's wrestling team was the best that South has had in several years, and many outstanding wrestlers such as Jerry Rogan, Brent Hawks, Tim Dellapina, and Mike Dellapina led the group in their overall effort. The life of a wrestler is one of hard practices and long hours on the mats as well as in the exercise room as the wrestler must always keep his body in top physical condition. Also a wrestler must keep an exact weight throughout the season so that he can stay in his weight class. This often means many hours of trying to lose that extra pound or two, watching every bite that is eaten, and skipping that delicious looking snack. Jerry Rogan, who won first place in the sectionals and in the WOL, commented that the past season was a good one, and although the team was pleased with its record, each individual member could remember some meet where he could have improved his record. With each individual wrestler putting up a tremendous effort, the team made a great overall showing for the 1982-83 season.

Wildkittens had many problems, but they did survive. South's girls lost many key players to graduation last year, but they managed to keep their heads high and come up smelling like a rose. Unlike last year, the Wildkittens played many state-ranked high schools such as Fairmont East, Xenia, Alter, Oak Hills, and Dunbar, and they still managed to achieve a state ranking of twelfth. However, if you had seen the Wildkittens in action, you would have probably sworn they were ranked number one and were on their way to the state championship. Like life, the Wildkittens had many up's and down's, and it seemed particularly true for one kitten. First string point guard Lynn Freeman, who is a junior, was seriously hurt during both the Xenia and the Dunbar games. This tragedy was a great loss to the Wildkittens as Lynn was not able to play several games and was not up to par until tournament time. The Wildkittens made it to the semi-finals in the district where they were beaten by Stebbins, a team they had defeated by 14 in regular season play. However, this year's team had many things to be proud of as honors were bestowed on individual members throughout the year. Rochelle Woods, an outstanding senior who has drawn the attention of many college recruiters, was named first team WOL, All-County player of the year, and All-Ohio third team. Geneva Sanford, a sophomore standout, also made first team WOL, All-County team, and All-Ohio honorable mention. 6'2" junior Beth Cherry was named to the third team WOL. Although these three girls have received special honors, they were part of an outstanding team which has done a lot for girls' athletics at South.

WHAT THE CROWD DOESN'T KNOW

By: Parri Payne

The South girls' basketball team, known as the Wildkittens, had plenty of mishaps throughout the year. The fans that come out to view the Wildkittens only see them as they appear on the floor and seldom do they realize what really goes on behind the scenes. For example, varsity basketball player Missy Marshall, in the midst of pre-game excitement, started to take off her warm-ups only to realize that she didn't have on her shorts . . . What a surprise, but the fans never knew! If you have heard the expression, "Don't leave home without it," you would realize that this cliche may apply to one player in particular, Varsity player Stephanie Freeman had a habit of always forgetting some part of her uniform, but with the help of her team mates, the fans never knew. Even the team, as a whole, had a mishap as the kittens once took a bus ride for naught. The team went all the way to Cincinnati to play, only to find out that the game had been rescheduled and the school was locked up for the night. The girls were very adventurous throughout the year. For example, when they went to Central State Universtiy to see two of their former team mates play for Shaw College, the young ladies went on a tour of the school during the game intermission. That many Wildkittens attracted the attention of many college men who began to follow them back to the game. Soon the male students poured into the gym and even Coach Copeland never knew what caused the "influx of fans." During the tournament at Wright State, the Kittens continued their search for excitement as two of the girls tried their voices with a duet in spite of being rejected by male "music critics." The Kittens may have used a great amount of energy off the court, but they still managed to give an outstanding performance on the court throughout the year.

EXPECTATIONS

By: Jayson Gee

The Wildcats were not expected to do well this year, but they ended up with an average season commented head coach Wayne Wiseman. This year's team started at an disadvantage by going without the traditional warm-up pants which were stolen before the season from the storage room. Nevertheless, the Wildcats were successful in upsetting the Middletown Middies 88-83 in a jam-packed Middletown gymnasium. The South-North game would be the next highlight of the season, and everyone was excited as it was rumored that the game would be held at the newly constructed Wittenberg Field House which seated 3000 plus fans. Well, the big rivalry was held at Wittenberg with a sold-out crowd, but South, in spite of a strong second half comeback, lost by six points. Parents' Night was next on the schedule and even here things didn't go the way they were supposed to. The festivities for the parents were never scheduled for numerous reasons and the Cats lost the game to Wayne 74-68. In spite of these losses, the Cats ended with a 15-8 season, and most of the wins can be attributed to long hard practices. However, even these had their moment of lightness as Jimmy Wallace and Duke Benton often showed up in black or blue silk dress socks instead of the traditional tube socks, and Jayson Gee, Darin Johnson, and Dillard Leslie often arrived with knees, ankles, feet, wrists, and sometimes heads taped. However, Mr. Willets always took good care of these injured players and had them wrapped, taped, whirlpooled, and ready to go by game time!

The 82-83 Wildcat basketball team was a team of many surprises. The Wildcats were not expected to do very well this season, but they proved everyone wrong. The mighty Wildcat hoopsters opened their season with an outstanding win over the Middletown Middies. They then went on a rampage to defeat their next two opponents, the Tecumseh Arrows and the Fairborn Skyhawks who were just two more teams to take an early defeat. The Wildcats turned victorious against such teams as Dayton Carroll, Columbus Eastmoor, and local powerhouses such as Urbana and Greenon. Many people said the Cats had Lady Luck on their side until the statistics were put in black and white. The only luck this 82-83 team had was all of those talented young men playing on the same team. Wayne Wiseman's team managed to put four of its five starters in the county's top scoring cage and these players were sophomore Darin Johnsan, juniors Jayson Gee and Karlton Clayborne, and senior forward-center Curtis "Duke" Benton. The Wildcats also had an unsung hero in the person of senior sensation Brian Thomas. However, if it were not for the tremendous response from the bench with exploding performances from David Buffenbarger, Dillard Leslie, Darryl Bego, and Jimmy Wallace, the team would not have been complete. When any five of these players got on the floor, no one knew just what would happen, but the results generally left smiles on the faces of the coaching staff. The one term used to describe this men's team would be togetherness; no player on the team was selfish, and each was always willing to give his team mate a chance. We salute the Cat's performance, and praise the representation of South High by these young men.

What's Blue and Gold and full of spirit? Well, it's the enthusiastic fans of South High School. Every year many fans come out to see the Wildcat teams in action and and their support is always a major part of any game. These fans include alumni, parents, teachers, administrators, students, and many loyal supporters that do not have students at South at this time. Screams, yells, and cheers of enthusiasm are heard as the team sets up for their special shots. During the season, the fans seem to over flow the bleachers, and as the games proceed, the frenzy seems to spread throughout the filled bleachers. Although some games had sad endings, the crowd was still there and they were always ready to return with the hope of victory for the next game. The high point of Fan Power came during the South-Wayne game. It was the first time that each of the classes at South had competed against each other in a spirit contest. The prize for the winning class was two hundred dollars, and the participation of the individual classes as well as the whole school left the Warriors filled with amazement. This game ended the basketball season, but the spirit endured throughout the rest of the year.

PAC CATS

By: Craig Elliott

This year's South High cheerleaders really worked hard to increase the spirit throughout the school. They worked especially hard with the freshmen and the sophomores, who at the beginning of the year seemed to lack spirit, but who by the end of the season, were giving the juniors and seniors a run for their money in the school spirit competition. Mrs. Clark, who is the cheerleading advisor, said, "Our girls on all of our squads have worked hard to support the school to the best of their ability," and their best went a long way to encourage the teams in all the sports. However, cheerleading is not always as glamorous as it appears from the side lines. The young ladies in the short skirts have to put up with such things as.sore throats from yelling, sore feet from stomping, and blistered hands from clapping, but none of these things ever seemed to stop them from cheering at the next game. The squads spend many long hours from early summer to the end of winter, practicing almost every day and planning for pep rallies and locker decoration many nights. In spite of all the long hours and physical discomforts, the 1982-83 cheerleaders never seemed to lack spirit or enthusiasm for the teams that they cheered on to victory.

"Poof! Poof!" cried the juniors as the seniors laid their "rap" on the student body and the gymnasium filled with spirit as the pep rally began. This was the year for class competition and the pep rallies were the place to really let loose and let the spirit rise. While the Junior and Senior class may have thought that they had the competition locked up when Dr. Knutson announced the class contests in the fall, the Freshman and Sophomore classes soon got into the swing and gave the upper classmen a run for their money. As the spirit thermometers rose, the students were given the opportunity to express their pride in their school and to show off some of their talents. Seniors got into the spirit with "rap sessions," juniors learned to dance and cheer in a special performance, and sophomores and freshmen made posters and badges to help carry the school spirit throughout the year. This was a year of "Positive influence" and everyone got into the act as all sports were represented in the various pep rallies as well as the drill team and the cheerleaders. This was the year when Pac Man was worked into the cheering routines and the Drill Team danced in punk costumes. It was a year of spirit and once again blue and gold became the traditional dress for game days, pep rallies, and home games.

A DAY OF SPIRIT

By: Daisy McMahan

It all started when the coaches and advisors felt that South was losing its spirit, and what is any school without School Spirit! So a couple of teachers got together and came up with the idea of a big Spirit Day Competition for the last home basketball games. The rules of the competition were explained to the class officers and soon the classes were busy making secret plans for the big day. Class meetings were held and every member of the different classes learned the spirit cheers and the Fight Song. Spirit Day dawned with students and faculty dressed in Gold and Blue and the highlight of the Pep Rally was a Scavenger Hunt won by the Freshmen. The Sophomores walked away with first place in the Spirit Banner competition. The Seniors took enough time out from practicing their flip card routine to sign up enough guests to win that competition, but the Juniors were not to be out done as they grouped their forces and won not only the cheering contest but the overall Spirit Award. Although trophies were presented to the class officers, they were hardly noticed amidst the grand prize of being a part of South and sharing school spirit with class mates and friends.

The Pep Band was once again a very important part of the basketball season and the Pep Rallies. Who can imagine a pep rally without the beat of the drums to stir up the crowd or the "Fight Song" to unite the student body! What would a basketball game be without the spirited sounds of the pep band during intermission and time outs! Without this group to help pep up the fans and stir up the team, Tiffney Gym would never be quite the some. From the "National Anthem" at the beginning of the game to the final notes of the brass CHARGE, this group is essential to the success of both pep rallies and home games. Dressed in special Pep Band shirts, this group of musicians presented a formidable picture of school spirit. The members of the Pep Band were chosen from the Marching Band for their special talents and it is made up of a select group of musicians. They worked under the direction of Mr. Steve Vrooman, SHS band director, but at the games, fans were most likely to see the group under the leadership of the student directors Lisa Yarbrough and Todd Baldridge. The members of the Pep Band gave a lot of time for this endeavor, but they always felt a sense of accomplishment when the fans showed their approval with applause.

WILLIE'S WILD BUNCH

By Cindy Babineaux

This year has not been the best year for Willie Fan Club. Although there was a lack of participation at the games from the student body, you still could hear the cheering of the Fan Club above the roar of the crowds. No matter if there were 4 or 40 people, WFC was always represented in a South High manner. However, bad luck struck the group. WFC ordered new sweaters in early November, and they did not receive them until the last game of the basketball season. However, the new sweaters arrived bright and pretty the wait was worth while.

The Public Relations Club, known to everyone as the P.R. Club, is a fast growing group of students who help out at football and basketball games. Armed with gold arm bands and welcoming smiles, these students greet opposing teams and visitors and offer help in making them feel at home at South. After the opposition is settled in, the P.R. members move to the home side to act as ushers and aides to the Wildcats. These two organizations, Willie's Fan Club and P.R. Club are a very important addition to the Athletic Department as they help spread the Wildcat Spirit.

"What are the Junior and Senior Boosters" is a question that is often asked by people outside of South High School. But anyone who has spent any time at South knows that these are two groups made up of selected students who take on the responsibility of keeping school spirit alive throughout the year. Although this group constantly shows its colors (gold and blue, of course,) and sings the "Fight Song" anytime, anyplace the spirit moves them, they do many more things. For the North-South basketball game they sold spirit strips and put together a spirit chain which has won the competition year after year. They also worked together to create a float for the Homecoming Parade and they held their annual Junior-Senior Booster basketball game for the student body just before Christmas break. The Senior Boosters, under the direction of Mrs. Betty Deem, sold singing Valentines for Valentine's Day, and they sponsored the Macho Man Contest for the student body before Spring Vacation. The Junior Boosters had a change in advisors midyear when Mrs. Marsha Jordan left South and Mrs. Connie Kearns took her place. Due to the change in leadership, they were not quite as active as they have been in years past but they did finish the year with a big pizza party. Everyone knows that these two groups are essential to the school and the student body appreciates the fact that they keep the spirit flowing throughout the school year.

AGILITY OF THE WOMEN

By: Parri Payne

The success of a gymnastic squad is always thought to be strengthened by the experience of its members. However, this is not olways the case. The 1982-83 Girls' Gymnastic squad was made up of entirely freshman and sophomores — the youngest classes of South High. The team did the job of a more experienced squad, and even beat our yearly rivals, the North Panthers. Although in mid-season Traci Mitchell dislocated her elbow while warming up for a floor exercise, this put somewhat of a damper on the squad, they regrouped and pulled through this accident and the rest of their mishaps with dedication and self discipline. The girls' record was 4-3 for the year plus attending the W.O.L. and District meets. Mary Reise made it to the finals in the District meet performing on the beam. Other honors include the two most improved members, Kelli Kaeser and Jill Moore, the most points awarded, Mary Reise, and the most places, Traci Mitchell. Coach Ann Reno stated that she feels there are no star members of a gymnastic squad. The squad works together and when the points start adding up, the team could win or lose a meet by one tenth of a point. Everyone contributes.

The Boys' Gymnastic Team made performing on rings, bars, and mats seem so easy that their performances seemed almost unbelievable at times. However, there were many hours of practice behind these exhibitions of near perfections and the team members worked long hours to master their individual skills. The team this year was small in number and it was faced with many hardships but the gymnists continued to strive to improve their skills. The team was faced with a devastating blow when Coach Jim Smith died quite unexpectedly over the Christmas vacation, but the team members worked together and vowed to improve their team efforts for the memory of their coach. Although the team was also slowed down in competition by many individual injuries, they continued to participate in meets and also give individual exhibitions. This year they were featured at such events as pep rallies and they added a new "twist" to their sport as they presented their individual performances to many classmates who were not aware of the skills needed for gymnastics. In the spring the boys' team joined with the girls to present the annual Gymkana Show for the public and this was the culmination of a year filled with many frustrations and many rewards.

THE WONDERFUL WORLD OF THE CIRCUS

By: Daisy McMahon

Each year in late April the men's and women's gymnastic teams combine talents with a number of returning South alumni to present the annual Gymkana Show under the direction of Mrs. Ann Reno. This year in keeping with the Circus theme, this group also enjoyed the talents of some younger members from the Circus Gymnastics Team. The crowd filled Tiffney Gym with the expectations of an evening of excitement, and they were not disappointed. The show was fast pased and filled with breath-taking stunts from the opening number to the grand finale. The show was a mixture of comedy routines and very serious highly skilled gymnastic routines. Acrobatic dance routines presented by couples with matching gymnastic skills were as beautiful as the high flying leaps of the men's tumbling team were exciting. During the course of the show everyone in the audience found some routine that made their heart beat a little faster and some stunt that brought a smile to their faces. The Gymkana Show was a fitting way to end a year of hard competition as it allowed the team members to show off their skills and to have a good time, and it gave the audience an exciting evening of entertainment.

Tennis is the only game in town that you don't want to end with love. Love means that a player has no points and this was just one of many terms such as fault, duece, and advantage that had to be learned before the players even began to compete. Under the guidance of new Head Coach Jim Scoby, the members of the South High School Tennis Team soon learned that the game took many long hours of practice and concentration, Not only the long practice but also the patience and determination required were very demanding, but Coach Scoby put together a team of young men and women who worked hard and became very competitive. The WOL has never been an easy league, but South's netters held their own and overcame many strong opponents to develop into a fine team of tennis players.

Baseball is the national sport but it's not as easy as it appears on television. Along with long hours of conditioning, players must also practice hitting and fielding everyday to be ready for the next game. As if this was not enough, baseball players are also plagued by a sport that is played in the early spring when freezing temperatures and unpredicted down pours are frequent. Despite all these hardships, the young men who played baseball under the direction of Coach Jack Crew were dedicated to the sport and worked hard to have a good game each time that they went out on the field. One of the highlights of the year was David Buffenbarger's "No-Hitter" against the league-leading Beavercreek team. It was one of those days when every pitch that David threw was the right one, and every fielder was in the right place at the right time. It was a day when all the long hours of practice paid off and it was a day that will be remembered by all the members of the team. At the end of the season Wildcat Tony Cooper was honored by being named to play on the All-Star Baseball team which was quite an honor for Tony and for his team mates as well.

The Girls' Softball Team had a good year under the direction of new Head Coach Gregg Newland who had the lady cats fired up and ready to go for each game. In spite of the cold spring weather and the rain that seemed to fall on every game day, Coach Newland and his Lady Cats continued to work on new plays and strategy whenever the weather was too bad to play a game. In the past, the girls' softball team has often been thought of as losers, but this year that attitude was all wrong. This team of highly spirited underclassmen and seniors were not losers. Although the final record was not as outstanding as the girls had hoped, the Wildcat softball team won more games this year than any year previously. And when they lost, they lost with pride. The lady Cats always gave 100 plus percent on the field and they continued to build their skills for the upcoming years. With new plays that have been perfected and many underclassmen returning next year, this year was just the beginning of a softball team that will make itself known in the future.

RUN FOR THE TAPE

By: Tammy Smith

The Boys' Track Team did not wait until the sound of the gun to start this season. They began with the new year, weeks before the first track meet, as they jumped hurdles in the halls and jogged around the building in an effort to build up the stamina which would be so all important when the season actually began. After weeks of conditioning and training, the team finally moved outdoors and began their competition. The season started with a bang as South, which has usually been strong in the running events once again had five good sprinters: Dwight Ellis, Willard Victoria, Michael Johnson, John Stevenson, and DeWitt Orr, who outran their first opponents. For middle distances, the runners were Robert Ervin, Michael Hamilton, Art Truss, Bill Copeland, DeAlda Warfield, and Sam Smith, and in the field events were Wildcats Chris Henry and Lamont Hansboro. The 1983 track team ended in second place in the WOL Meet with the 3200 Relay Team taking a third and Sam Smith qualifying for the State in the Two Mile. Robert Ervin set a new record with a twenty-two foot Broad Jump to help the team in its WOL battle. It was a long season with many victories and many thrills which came from breaking the tapes and taking home the medals.

It seemed so easy and graceful when viewed from the stands, but down on the track it was a different matter. When the girls lined up for the starting gun, few spectators imagined the pounding of the hearts or the straining of the muscles that the girls experienced as they tensed for the grueling task ahead of them. In only a few moments the race was over and all the months of hard work was behind the participants . . . only one could be the winner and all the others must look ahead to the next meet with the hope that the next time will be the time for them. This year's Girls' Track Team worked under the direction of Coach John Derr who took over the team for the first time this year. Since many of last year's team graduated in 1982, this was a building year for the girls and although the team was small, the girls gave enough in determination to make up for their lack of numbers. It was a year where the girls increased their skills and improved their times for next year.

SPORTS AS A PASTTIME

By: Daisy McMahon

This was a good year for the intramural program at South as many students were actively involved in the program. Using the physical education classes as a source from which to draw participants, Ms. Ann Reno set up a program which met the needs and interests of the many students, and many of the intramural activities dealt with sporting events that students could continue to participate in after they left high school. Bowling and ping pong were good indoor activities during the winter months, but with the spring thaw, those students involved in intramurals took to the sports of archery and tennis. A small group of girls even spent their time learning and practicing the skills of gymnastics. This program is one that allows any student to try a sport he or she has never participated in before or improve skills in a sport they hope to continue with in later life. Ms. Reno was extremely pleased with the participation this year and she commented that seldom has she had a group that worked so hard or with so much determination. Even though those students in intramurals just participated for the enjoyment of the sport, trophies were awarded at the end of the year for excellence and for improvement in individual skills.

When the fans arrive at a sporting event, they are aware of the players and the coaches, but few spectators realize the vast number of people who work behind the scenes to make a game or a meet run smoothly. From the physicians and trainers who are always present in case a participant is injured to the sporters in the press box and the statisticians at the scorer's table, there are a tremendous number of adults who volunteer their time so that players and spectators may enjoy the game. Tickets have to be counted, numbered, and sold; programs have to be compiled; the gym or playing field has to be manicured, and the score boards and PA system has to be checked by these unknown faces long before the players and the crowds begin to arrive. At the event itself, the crowd is seldom aware of the many people who have given their time so that refreshments are available; players are identified; clocks are correct to the second; and the plays are announced. However, without these "extras", a game would not seem complete. These individuals behind the scenes do a great service for South High School and they ask little in return except for the knowledge that students have been able to participate and the satisfaction of knowing that a job is well done. To these many "unsung" heroes, we say "Thank You!"
